Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L.

The Old Guard in both political parties may just as well make up their minds that in this presidential campaign all party lines are down. The main issue, is whether or not this democracy is so bankrupt of leadership that it must employ in its highest office the same man for 12 years. Whether despite the warnings of Washington, Jefferson and Jackson, to mention three presidents most strongly opposed to a third term, this nation will again succumb to the bland sophistries of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, is the issue. Will the electorate override those warnings.

Democrats are flocking to the Hoosier standard. In another column today we publish an editorial from the Cleveland Plain Dealer, a paper which for a hundred years has supported the Democratic party. The editor interrupts that long record to oppose Mr. Roosevelt's third term ambition. From one coast to the other voices are raised against Mr. Roosevelt's assumption that he is the Indispensable Man in this critical time of our history.

Showing that party lines have been submerged in the third-term crisis now confronting this country is the rapid enrollment of Willkie Volunteers throughout the 48 states. This is a non-partisan organization in which members of all political parties can rally to the Willkie banner without changing their party registration. Even now, only two days after the keynote speech of Mr. Willkie in his Indiana home town, Ellwood, the number of clubs bearing his name ranges into the thousands and the membership into hundreds of thousands.

We are wondering whether the precedent breaking Mr. Roosevelt will accept the challenge to debate the issues of the campaign with Wendell Willkie on public rostrums. If he refuses he will disappoint his own, as well as Willkie supporters. It will be remembered that Abraham Lincoln did not disdain to debate the issue of negro bondage with Stephen Douglas, democratic candidate for the presidency.

The issue which the two presidential candidates should debate, is whether the bondage upon American citizens imposed and contemplated by the New Deal should continue; whether private industry should be released from the drastic and sometimes whimsical regulations of bureaus which restrict production and expansion; whether business interests shall be denied justice by fiat of the Labor Board, for instance, or whether all government bureaus shall be required to submit their decisions to a court of justice, whenever either party to a dispute shall so elect. Putting it another way, the issue at the polls in November is whether or not the American people shall relinquish their powers of government to a small group in Washington.

Of course whenever Congress delegates its authority to the President or one of the governmental bureaus, by that much have the people been deprived of a voice in government. Wendell Willkie made it quite clear that he believes in government regulation of business. The American people were long ago resigned to giving up that much power to the Federal government. Abuse of business freedom is license, just as it is for individuals whose ideas of liberty violate the rights of fellow citizens. License must be curbed, and, in the case of interstate business the Federal government must do it. But that is a long cry from giving a governmental board power to exercise its own discretion regarding regulation. When that happens government by law ceases and government by men begins.

Wendell Willkie does not promise Americans an easy way out of our internal and external troubles. He promises us that if we take the hard road, by toil and sweat, he will do his best at the helm. He will spend as little money as possible to bring back prosperity. He does not even promise us lower taxes, as Mr. Roosevelt did in 1932. He makes no appeal to greed and the love of ease, and utters no prayer to the lunatic red fringe. In brief, as one commentator points out his philosophy is that of the work bench, and not of the pig trough.

High And Elementary Schools Open Monday

More Than 800 Children Will Resume Studies At Local Institutions Ending Summer Vacation Period

To the tune of "School Days, School Days, Good Old Golden Rule Days," hundreds of Nevada City district children will trek back to their classes Monday to resume their studies, abandoned when the annual summer vacation began more than two months ago. The number of children at both the high school and elementary school is expected to be approximately the same, if not exceeding, last semester's totals, which were 528 at the elementary and 296 at the high school.

Registration for high school students was held on Tuesday, Wednesday and today. The high school teachers were present to assist the students in selecting their subjects. Grammar school registration will be tomorrow between the hours of 9 a. m. and 4 p. m.

Teachers Ready

The schools and the teachers are all set for the resumption of classes. Many instructors attended school themselves during the summer, increasing their teaching knowledge. Both the high school and the grammar school will have several new teachers.

H. E. Kjorlie, district school superintendent, says registrations at the high school came in rapidly Wednesday and today but many students will not register until Monday, when the school actually starts.

County Superintendent of Schools Walter Carlson states approximately one third of the schools in the county will open on Monday. The remainder will open on September 3rd, the day following Labor Day.

Grass Valley schools open Monday, the same as in this city.

Hobbie, vice principal and biology and general science instructor; Mrs. Marian Libbey, choral music; Ralph Smith, instrumental music and English II; Isabelle Hefelfinger, health supervisor, hygiene; Helen Chapman, social science, girl's physical education, U. STATE FORESTRY SUCCESSFUL IN BATTLING FIRES

Fire Warden William Sharpe reveals of the 65 fires controlled by the state division of forestry fire fighting crews this season in Nevada County only three have burned more than ten acres.

"The State Division of Forestry is experiencing one of their most successful seasons in suppressing fires in Nevada County," Sharpe states. "Out of 65 fires controlled to date only three have reached a total of more than ten acres, whereas by this time last year 78 fires had burned a total of 7,037 acres at a damage of $13,390 including improvement losses.

"A new fire truck was put in service at the first of the current season while two smaller trucks recently purchased are to be made into tank trucks and will be placed at strategic points throughout the county to provide quick action in suppressing fires in the vicinity.

Large Number Benefits

"This is the first step in a fire plan adopted by the State Board of Forestry designed to provide adequate fire protection to not only the large land owner but to the thousands of home owners who live outside incorporated areas and have to look to the Division of Forestry for protection. Within the last few years there has been a large number of homes built outside the city limits, which has put a heavier burden on the organization.

"Besides actual fire suppression the Nevada County crews have spent 75 hours in assisting property owners in burning off fire hazards about their place."

WAR MINERALS DEBATED HERE BY SUPERVISORS

Supervisors from four counties met here today to formulate plans to interest the United States Government in the mining of reported substantial deposits of necessary war materials in the counties, Nevada, Placer, Sierra and El Dorado.

The meeting was held in the supervisors room in the Nevada County Courthouse, with Cary Arbogast, chairman of this county's board of supervisors, as host.

Considerable interest is being evinced in the possibility of securing federal funds for the mining of chrome, manganese and other minerals needed in war material manufacturing. All four counties interested in today's meeting have deposits of manganese and chrome. In some sections there are also found scheelite and quartz crystals.

Several local mining men attended the gathering, including Ed Barker of this city, internationally known mining engineer.

Andrew Modglin is the Sierra County board member authorized to participate in the gathering here. Arbogast was Nevada County's representative. Carl Niegel of Cool represented El Dorado County and John McFadden, Placer County.

In Nevada County in 1918, 3,328 tons of chromite, valued at $116,933, was produced. Those figures were exceeded both by El Dorado and Placer Counties. Sierra County in that year produced 807 tons, valued at $40,012.

Local Voters Prepared For Tuesday Election

Supervisor's Contest Arousing Considerable Interest As Primary Date Nears; Superior Judge Jones Unopposed

Nevada City voters are preparing to go to the polls next Tuesday, primary election day, to cast their ballots for their favorite candidates for United States Senator, Congressional Representative of the Second district, State Senator of the Seventh District, State Assemblyman of the Sixth District, County Central Committeemen of the First Supervisorial District, Judge of the Superior Court and Supervisor of the First District.

The race most interesting to local voters is that of supervisor of the first district. Cary S. Arbogast, chairman of the board of supervisors, is opposed by Irvine Seaman and Frank Davies. Both Seaman and Davies are city councilmen. It is likely the race will be so close a run off will be necessary at the general election in November.

Judge Jones Unopposed

For superior judge, George L. Jones, appointed by Former Governor Frank Merriam to the post after Judge Raglan Tuttle was elevated to the appellate court, has no opposition for a six year term. Judge Jones' friends, however, are working to give him a huge complimentary vote.

State Senator Jerrold L. Seawell has no opposition either on the Republican or Democratic party tickets. Seawell filed on both tickets.

Congressman Harry L. Englebright of this city is unopposed for re-election. Englebright filed on the Republican, Democratic, Progressive and Townsend party tickets.

On the Republican ticket candidates for United States Senator are Hiram W. Johnson, incumbent; Ellis E. Patterson, lieutenant governor of California; Samuel William Yorty, state assemblyman and John Anson Ford, Los Angeles county supervisor.

Candidates for the post on the Democratic ticket are Johnson, Yorty, Ford, Patterson, James D. Meredith, attorney and counsellor at law and Richard Stuart Otto, mechanical engineer.

Thurman Has Opponent

Assemblyman Allen G. Thurman, Colfax newspaper publisher, is unopposed for the Republican nomination for the position, but has T. S. Marlor, Placerville attorney, as an opponent for the Democratic nomination.

Three Democratic county central committeemen from the first supervisor district are to be selected but only two names, those of Frank G. Finnegan and Walter J. Hawkins, are listed on the ballot. Three Republican central committeemen are also to be elected but no names appear on the ballot.

Those who declined to state their party affiliation can vote only for supervisor and superior judge at Tuesday's primary.

On the Prohibition party ballot Fred Dyster, business executive is a candidate for United States Senator, On the Progressive party ticket Hiram W. Johnson and Richard Stuart Otto are listed.

FLAMES DESTROY HOME OF FAMILY ON PROSPECT ST.

A house belonging to Dr. C. W. Chapman, at 203 Prospect street, was destroyed by fire Tuesday afternoon. It was one of the most spectacular fires in recent years, because it ignited a tall cedar adjacent to the building and the flames roared skyward. The tree, standing in the back of Dr. Chapman's residence on Sacramento street, had been used years ago as a lookout and radio by Chapman's sons now grown to manhood, and near the top there was stil a wooden scaffolding where the youngsters once had their aerie.

Occupying the house were W. Williams and family, recent arrivals. During their lunch they heard a crackling sound in the attic above and immediately the family began removing household effects. The alarm was not turned in until the entire roof was ablaze. Firemen arrived and immediately directed their efforts toward adjoining property, a garage belonging to Dr. Chapman, a three story house owned by Sig Ronning, and the home of Baptiste Toccalini. Blazing shingles from the burning roof, carried by a stiff breeze ignited the roof of Luther Marsh home and dry grass along the parkway.

The Williams family lost most of their furniture and clothing. The origin of the fire in the attic could not be determined. Dr. Chapman warmly praised the volunteer firemen under Chief Luther Marsh who had prevented the destruction of adjoining property. Dr. Chapman declared he had the firemen to thank for saving the remainder of his buildings in the vicinity.

JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder about stately totem poles—
Their startling forms and strange, fantastic faces,
I wonder at the tales they bring to us
Of other peoples—other times and places.

I wonder if you were ever obsessed by the desire to own a totem pole. I was once, several years ago; and the experience was both amusing and infomative.

It was during a visit to Seattle that I became totem pole minded—read little books about them and learned to read some of the most obvious symbolism. Then, one day while inspecting a group of these amazing examples of aboriginal craftsmanship, I suddenly felt that the entire trip would be dull, drab and deficient unless I could have a totem pole for my very own.

Expression of my wishes exposed me to stares of incredulity and unoriginal queries concerning my mental status. I was advised to sit down in the shade and to avoid the direct rays of the sun. However, I remained obdurate, and so the head of our small family took me in hand.

"What on earth could we do with a totem pole?" he inquired in husbandly tones.

"Couldn't we take it home to Sacramento" I said meekly, "and set it up on the front lawn?" It seemed that we could not.

"There's that hill of ours in Nevada County," I persisted. "A totem pole would look ducky up there among the pines and cedars."

At this point I was overawed by a line of argument which reminded me of the defense in the case of the iron kettle.

"We couldn't use a totem pole, no one would sell us a totem pole; if some one would sell us a totem pole, we could not possibly tote a totem pole home."

I surrendered—graciously I hope: only to find that I now had a fixation which nagged me continually.

The next day while visiting that castle of liberal education, the Hudson Bay Emporium, I came upon a display of totems moderate in size; here was my opportunity! I selected one of suit case length and asked the young lady attendant to read it for me.

This she was unable to do, but would introduce me to one who could. She went in search of the department head and soon returned with a lady who proved to be none other than Kadashan Hall, writer, lecturer and a member of the Thinglet Indian tribe of south Alaska, whose totem I had elected to purchase.

I spent some time in Miss Hall's company, listening as she told me many interesting facts and legends concerning the Indian of her tribe, and explained at length the symbolism of the Raven totem of the Thinglets. Then fearing that I might forget some of the data, she typed for me the story which she had just repeated.

Yes, I know you think this is very silly twaddle—like Bret Harte's Jo, you are probably turning your nose up as you read; but next week when I tell you the legend of the Raven you will remember that in all ages and among all peoples the power of the dictator depends upon the continued ignorance of the dictated, and glancing over this tormented world in which we now live, I fancy you will shake your head as you repeat these annane, but truthful words, "twas ever thus."

Plain Dealer, Democratic 100 Years Finds 3d Term Abhorrent To Principles

The following editorial is from the Cleveland Plain Dealer, Cleveland, Ohio, which for nearly one hundred years has been one of the stauchest Democratic newspapers in the country. It ardently supported Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1932 and 1936.

JEFFERSON VS. ROOSEVELT

If Thomas Jefferson were now alive, he would urge the defeat of Franklin D. Roosevelt for the Presidency this year. Years after his retirement the author of the Declaration of Independence and the father of the Democratic Party wrote these words, worth recalling now:

"The example of four Presidents, voluntarily retiring at the end of their eighth year, and the progress of public opinion that the principle is salutary, have given it in practice the force of precedent and usage insomuch that should a President consent to be a candidate for a third election, I trust he would be rejected on this demonstration of ambitious views."

Jefferson is credited, with Washington, with establishing the anti-third term precedent. The first President set the example of refusing a third nomination. The second President, being involuntarily a one-term executive, had no decision to make touching the issue.

The third President was Jefferson. That he could have had a third nomination, and probably a third election, few familiar with that period in American political history will doubt. He retired from office in March, 1809. In January of that year, two months before the expiration of his term, Jefferson wrote:

"If the principle of rotation be a sound one, as I conscientiously believe it to be, with respect to this (the presidential office), no pretext should ever be permitted to dispense with it, because there never will be a time when real difficulties will not exist, and furnish a plausible pretext for dispensation."

One finds in these words of Jefferson no conditioning of the principle he held "sound". Jefferson did not say that if world conditions looked serious as a President approached completion of his second term he would be justified in violating the anti-third term rule. For Jefferson foresaw, even while he was still in the White House, that any President desirous of a third term could readily set up specious reasons why at the moment he was an Indispensable Man.

Leaving the Presidency in 1809, Jefferson lived till 1826. Years later, having then as elder statesman and political philosopher seen his successor Madison elected and re-elected and retire after eight years, Jefferson found his hostility to a third term strengthened by further observation. Any man who might try to extend his administration beyond eight years should "berejected on this demonstration of ambitious views."

It required many years of political history to bring into existence the conditions Jefferson forecast only a few years before his death as dangerous to democracy in America.

For his "demonstration of ambitoius views," Mr. Roosevelt would be recommended for defeat by Thomas Jefferson, were he alive today!

Conditions change, but underlying principles are fixed from one generation to another. There is something abhorrent to democratic practice and theory in the doctrine of the Indispensable Man. If the situation in the United States is so desperate that only one among 130,000,000 persons is capable of effective leadership, the Nation is indeed in a bad way.

In that case political bankruptcy is already upon us. In that case it is probably too late for salvage.

The Plain Dealer refuses to adopt so defeatist an attitude. We refuse to subscribe to the doctrine of the Indispensable Man.

The precedent against the third term is part of democracy's bill of rights. It is part of America's policy of insurance against dictatorship. We side with Washington and Jefferson against Franklin D. Roosevelt.

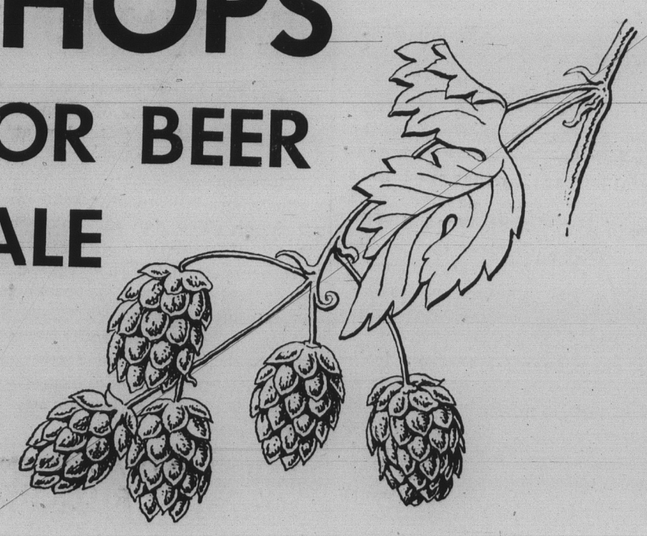
WHAT HOPS DO FOR BEER AND ALE



Hops are for flavor. They give to good beer and ale their lively, appetizing flavor, their pleasant, aromatic tang.

Brewers select and blend their hops with extreme care. In fact, every step in making beer and ale is conducted with masterly skill—to give you better-tasting, more wholesome beverages.

Now the brewing industry wants to do one thing more. It wants to protect your right to drink good beer and ale—by keeping the places where beer and ale are sold wholesome, too.

We want undesirable, anti-social establishments "cleaned-up or closed-up." A plan of action has already been put into effect in a number of states. This plan is being extended. We'd like you to know about it. Send for interesting free booklet.

GOOD POSSIBILITY OF OBTAINING FEDERAL FUNDS FOR TAHOE ROAD

Communications To Chamber Secretary Here Indicate Money Available For Such Highway Project

Letters of encouragement regarding the possibility of obtaining federal funds for the improving of the Tahoe-Ukiah Highway have been received here by H. F. Sofge, assistant secretary of the recently formed Tahoe Pacific Highway 20 Association.

The Tahoe Pacific Association, which represents six counties through which the Tahoe-Ukiah Highway passes, was organized to promote the advantages of the road as a military and scenic route.

Enjoy Vacation—

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Allen returned last week from a two week's vacation. Taking the Redwood Highway route, they spent several days in Oregon besides attending the fair in San Francisco. They visited relatives on the trip.

Sofge had written a letter to Congressman Harry L. Englebright in Washington desiring information on the position of the federal government on the subject.

Letter Received

The letter received in reply follows in part:

"Like yourself, I am very much interested in federal assistance for the improvement of roads in our Congressional District, and was pleased to have the information which you sent me about the state highway between Tahoe and Ukiah, and the meeting of the delegates who discussed the feasibility of promoting the highway as a scenic and sportsmen's road.

"You may rest assured of my continued best efforts in the matter and I will be glad to have you keep me advised of what progress is being made."

Englebright enclosed a communication he received from the federal public roads administration. The letter, highly encouraging, reads:

Encouraging News

"Reference is made to your letter of August 2nd regarding federal assistance which might be given for the improvement on the Tahoe-Ukiah Highway in California.

"This route is now on the federal aid system, and is therefore eligible for improvement with regular federal aid funds. The initiative for improvement with these funds rests with the State Highway Department.

"The section from Marysville to Ukiah is also on the strategic network, which consists of a group of roads which the military authorities consider as specially suited to their tactical transport requirements. All routes thus classified are receiving special consideration at this time, and essential improvements upon them will be accorded priority in the approval of expenditure of all available federal highway funds."

The letter was signed by Thomas H. MacDonald, commissioner of public roads. Sofge announced he will get in touch immediately with the state highway department for furtner action in the matter.

INFORMATION IS REQUESTED ON LOCAL AIRPORT

The California State Planning Board has requested information on the Nevada City Airport for a master plan of California airports and airways.

In a letter to H. F. Sofge, local chamber of commerce secretary, L. Deming Tilton, administrative officer for the planning board, said the master plan is being prepared in cooperation with the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

"Such a plan is necessary," the letter reads, "if we are to have a coordinated transportation system, adequate aviation services and facilities and effective national defense. It is of immediate urgency because bills which would make federal funds available for airport development now are being considered in Washington. Our final report will be presented to the governor, the legislature, congressmen and the Civil Aeronautics Authority."

Sofge has started to gather complete information on the Nevada City airport for the planning board. Darrel DeNeal, who is in charge of the local airport, is cooperating with Sofge in the gathering of the information.

ARREST IS MADE FOR FIRE LAW VIOLATION

Lee Pickering, 31, is held in the county jail here on a charge of setting a camp fire without a permit. Pickering was arrested by Sheriff Carl J. Tobiassen and Fire Warden William Sharpe on Tuesday. He was brought immediately before Justice of the Peace Charles Morehouse in Grass Valley but requested additional time to make a plea. Pickering is accused of setting a fire without a permit on the Blake Ranch in the Rough and Ready district.

PIG TROUGH VS. WORK BENCH PHILOSOPHY

By RALPH H. TAYLOR

America's ten year struggle to pull out of the slough of despond, according to Dr. Thomas Nixon Carver, professor of political economy at Harverd University, has brought two clashing philosophies — the Work Bench Philosophy and the Pig Trough Philosophy—into sharp conflict!

The two opposing philosophies, as described by Dr. Carver, are roughly as follows:

1. The Work Bench Philosophy, based on nature's law: Adapt or die! In effect, the end of production is further production, that we should consume in order that we may produce; that if we have more energy than is necessary to sustain life, the surplus should be used for further productive achievement.

2. The Pig Trough Philosophy, which amounts to substantially this: The end of life and industry is enjoyment; we produce in order that we may consume, whether our consumption be gross or refined, whether it consist in filling our bellies, or in loafing and inviting our souls.

"The Creamery Co-Ooperator," provocative publication of The Challenge Cream and Butter Association, in an interesting analysis of Dr. Carver's views, comments as follows:

"Very likely there are proponents of both philosophies among the heterogeneous masses who call themselves United States Americans This nation wouldn't have two or more political parties, there wouldn't be the rich and the poor, the Haves and the Have-Nots, were it not for the fact that we are free to subscribe to either of these patterns of living, as our conscience dictates.

"But the two philosophies are constantly in competition with each other—and in the end, the Work Bench Philosophy will win out, simply because the people who adopt it will beat in competition those who adopt and practice the so-called Pig Trough Philosophy."

There are many, undoubtedly, who will argue that neither the Work Bench Philosophy, nor the Pig Trough Philosophy, represents an ideal philosophy, that there must be time for leisurely living, as well as productive living, and that man is entitled to enjoy the fruits of his labor.

Dr. Carver would not argue with that contention, in all probability, but would point out the truth—that millions of Americans have been led to believe that they can filch their fruit from the corner fruit stand, instead of coming by it the hard way; by productive labor.

Man cannot live by work alone, but he must certainly die without it!

That's the lesson, without doubt, that the Harvard economist is trying to get over with his modern-day parable of the Work Bench Philosophy versus the Pig Trough Philosophy.

The Republic of France is dead—sent to her death by disciples of the Pig Trough Philosophy, who wanted shorter hours, fewer work days and more money for less labor, and who felt they could defy the natural law that wealth comes only from production.

And the Republic of the United States, if it persists in following the prophe'es of the "something for nothing" philosophy, will follow France into the graveyard of nations.

That's the lesson which Americans need to heed, as this country's leaders seek to undo the damage which has been done during the past decade.

There is joy and satsifaction in hard work; in a job well done. There is dignity in measuring up to one's responsibilities. There is happiness in toil; pride in accomplishment.

That's what America needs to learn again.

Washington Snapshots

by JAMES PRESTON

Those in the Washington Mutual Administration Society aren't burning any bridges behind them. They are clearing the way clear for a retreat when, and if, it becomes necessary to admit that the defense program isn't moving fast enough to soothe public clamor for speed.

This statement is not meant to cause any alarm of fear that the program has bogged down, but simply to reveal the care with which this group has planned for its own security at the public feed trough. Nor does it refer to the president's National Defense Commission.

In brief those who direct everything in Washington but the weather are already laying the foundation for a pedestal from which a large finger of accusation will point in the direction of the manufacturing industries—if it becomes necessary.

Already there have been insinuations that industry is "playing politics" with defense orders; that there may be a "very ugly" story to tell about the defense program; that "capital strikes" may be afoot; that industry is trying to tie strings to national defense. And already we hear some gound-offers asking why, with billions of dollars already appropriated, hordes of tanks and the planes and guns aren't rolling off the assembly lines?

Certainly there is not even a suspicion among persons qualified to know what is going on within the workings of the defense set up that there is any "ugly story" to be told about manufacturers, or that industrialists are taking advantage of the program. And to the question of "Why?" there is a very good answer.

The story of the Garand rifle, said to be the finest weapon of its type in the world, is a good example of the true state of things. Only a few thousand Garand rifles have thus far been produced, although many thousands are provided for in defense appropriatons. Why?

The answer is that as yet army experts have not seen fit to "freeze" the design of the gun—meaning that they are constantly making changes. So it is that until the design has finally been determined, jigs, dies, the tools and gauges necessary for its manufacture at high speed cannot be made. Until then industry's mass production methods are useless and the Garand rifle will continue to be manufactured by slower proceses.

The story has its counterparts in the question of tanks, planes and other equipment.

Where, then, would blame rightly belong if, a year or two from now, there was still no standardization of design and no speedy flow of defense equipment from the production lines of industry? Perhaps there would be no blame, rightly, for there only the real military experts are qualified to know when they have perfected their designs and can safely "freeze" them.

In any event, those qualified to know the situation are saying that there should be no accusing finger pointed in the direction of production lines.

Incidental to this technical problem is the question reforms which still looms large over the Capital City.

The clamor for removal of hamstringing government agencies still comes from almost every side—public, labor, management and the military branches of the government, but there is still a determination among the Washington planners to hold on to their theories and so-called social gains.

Probably the best case in point here is the National Labor Relations Board. Amendments to make this a more workable and less officious branch of the government have already been given approval of congressional bodies, but they are persistently given the rabbit punch every time any effort is made to put them through to enactment.

UNTAMED, FILM DRAMA OF FAR NORTH, COMING

Employing for its background the impressive grandeur of the mountains and forests of the North-Canadian Rockies and co-starring three of Hollywood's most popular personalities. Ray Milland, Patracia Morison and Akim Tamiroff—Paramount has contrived an exciting and completely entertaining version of Sinclair Lewis' intriguing story, "Mantrap," which has been brought to the screen under the title, "Untamed," will be have its local premiere Sunday night at the Nevada Theatre.

Enhanced by some of the most eye filling technicolor it has been this reviewer's good fortune to see reproduced on the screen—with especial applause for a blizzard said to be the first ever to be photographed in color. "Untamed" is the type of entertainment calculated to please every type of audience and has been expertly as well as sympathetically directed by George Archainbaud, from a screenplay by Frederick Hazlitt Brennan and Frank Butler.

SPORTS

CRUCIAL GAME FACES MINERS THIS SUNDAY

Grass Valley Nine Has Chance To Win Second Half Championship

The Grass Valley Miners have the opportunity of cinching the second half championship of the Sacramento Valley League Sunday when they tangle with the Redding nine at Redding in the final game of the season.

The Miners hold a one game lead and need Sunday's victory to be the second half title winner. A loss, however, will send the two squads and possibly Chico into a tie, necessitating playoff games.

The second half winner will play Chico, first half title holder, for the season championship.

Faces Tough Pitcher

During the past two games the Grass Valley sluggers have blasted out a total of 49 hits. Hits are not expected to flow so easy Sunday, though, as Dooley Bertolani, Redding pitcher, is noted for his stinginess as far as basehits are concerned.

Reliable Archie Campbell will do the pitching for the Miners. Ken Brock will be behind the plate; Dick Hoskins at firstbase; Vernon Madan at second; Vince Fusaro at third and Sylvester Gregory at the shortstop spot. In the outfield will be Charles Lamphier, Marz Dutra and George Cooper.

HUNTERS PREPARE FOR DOVE SEASON OPENING

Nevada City sportsmen are oiling their guns in preparation for the opening of dove season on September 1st.

Indications point to some good shooting in the lower section of Nevada County and in Yuba County. It is probable many hunters will try their luck in Sierra Valley in Sierra County, where doves are generally pretty thick on the opening day of the season.

Martha A. Chickering, director of the state department, also announced that 7,202 needy blind persons were paid an average of $38.00 for July.

Nevada county's total blind aid grants of $1,000 went to 20 recipients.

The aged, blind and child aid programs are all state-wide in scope, but are administered by the local county board of supervisors, acting through their county welfare department.

PLEA TO SEND DESTOYERS TO AID BRITISH

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 22.—Bart Cavanaugh of Sacramento today was appointed by the Republican State Central committee as regional chairman of the Willkie-McNary campaign in the Sacramento Valley area.

Cavanaugh will have supervision of the Willkie-McNary campaign in his district and will be the representative in that area of the Republican state committee.

Bradford M. Melvin, Republican state chairman, in charge of the Willkie-McNary campaign in California, announced the appointment.

"The campaign committee will be de-centralized with regional heads as far as possible," Melvin said. "This plan emphasizes our intention to put the campaign to elect Wendell L. Willkie president right into the hands of the rank and file of American people, whose insitsent and nation-wide demand resulted in the nomination of Willkie and McNary."

Melvin announced that Congressman Joseph Martin of Massachusetts, chairman of the Republican National committee and leader of the Republican campaign in the nation, will visit California about the last of August to confer with the Willkie-McNary supporters in the Golden State.
